Prather gets hole in one

If you heard a few shouts and hollers on Thursday May 18, it was Teresa Prather and her gang, after she hit a hole in one on hole #6. This was Prather's first hole in one and the first of this season for the Thursday Late Swingers League. Congratulations Teresa!

Juniper Hill Ladies
Golf Club

The Juniper Hill Wednesday Ladies Golf League was established in the late 50s. Our goal is to promote competitive 18-hole play for ladies with an established USGA Handicap and to promote friendship and camaraderie. We have various formats of play each week and Match Play in the month of July. We participate in various tournaments sponsored by the Juniper Hill Ladies Golf Club. We also sponsor an invitational tournament, "The Juniper" which draws the best women golfers in Kentucky, Indiana and Southern Ohio.

The Late Swingers Ladies League was established in 1980 to promote and support women's golf in and around Frankfort. The league's goal was, and is, to have fun while playing golf.

How to hit out of the rough

Timothy Bodamer

Hitting out of the thick grass, or rough, can be a major challenge. It requires changing your swing to use power to get the ball out of danger. The golf ball may also be partially or totally obscured by the thick grass; that lack of a visible target may cause you to mis-hit. Knowing how to get under the ball and generate extra power may help you maneuver out of trouble.

Compensate for the amount of power you'll lose in a swing in the rough with your club selection. You may want to add a club depending on distance. For example, if the ball is 120 yards out and you normally hit a 9-iron that distance, use an 8-iron instead. The extra power is required because a ball in the rough will be slowed by the thick grass as it gets airborne.

Choke down on the club like a baseball batter chokes up on the bat. This means leaving space between the top of the club and the top hand of your grip. Choking down will create stability when you hit the ball. If you hold the club with your normal grip--near the top of it--the club head has a greater chance of shifting on impact, resulting in an offline or thin shot.

Predict the amount of grass you'll trap between the ball and club face. If you don't trap a lot of grass when the club impacts the ball, you may catch the ball cleanly and hit a flier: a line drive that runs fast upon landing. Trapping a lot of grass in the rough results in a slower swing speed, which affects distance. The lie of the ball will determine the amount of backswing and club speed you create.

Play the ball in the middle of your stance. This allows you to swing down on the ball and pinch it, causing it to lift. By playing the ball in the middle of the stance, you also help maintain balance. When playing a hybrid club, the ball should be an inch farther forward in the stance because hybrid club face angles are a little greater than the traditional long irons.

Identifying the nearest point of relief

Lisa Goins
PGA Rules Queen

The “nearest point of relief” is the reference point for taking FREE relief from interference by an immovable obstruction (i.e. cart path), an abnormal ground condition (i.e., casual water) or a wrong putting green. It is the point on the course nearest to where the ball lies that is not nearer the hole, and that if the ball were lying there, there would be no interference from the condition from which relief is sought.

The correct procedure for determining this point is to simulate addressing a ball with the club you would normally use if the condition were not there, with your stance not touching the cart path, casual water, ground under repair, etc. The point on the course where your club-head touches the ground is the nearest point of relief.

You are allowed to drop your ball within one club-length of that spot when taking relief (any club in your bag may be used for this measurement). Free relief must be complete relief, so your stance and lie must be completely free from interference from the condition.
